Profile

Philip Sicuso is a principal at Bose Public Affairs Group and a partner at Bose McKinney & Evans, where he is chair of the Gaming Group. Sicuso assists clients with legal matters and government and regulatory affairs, including extensive experience with casino gaming and state lottery law. In addition, he works with clients on government procurement and contracting matters, which could include standard contracts, inter-governmental agreements and public-private partnerships. His experience allows him to help government and private sector entities work together to create economic growth, as well as to counsel clients on a broad range of legal, regulatory and legislative issues.

Mr. Sicuso represents clients before multiple government agencies and at the Indiana General Assembly, where he is a registered lobbyist. He has successfully worked with legislators and staff from both sides of the aisle.

Prior to re-entering private practice in 2010, Mr. Sicuso served as general counsel for the Indiana Gaming Commission during the administration of Governor Mitch Daniels.

Education

Sicuso is a graduate of the University of Notre Dame and University of Notre Dame Law School.
