Profile

As a principal with Bose Public Affairs Group, Trenton Hahn represents a wide variety of clients before state government and local municipalities in Indiana. He advises and lobbies on complex issues involving insurance and financial institutions, health care, outdoor advertising and gaming. Hahn has extensive experience in working with trade associations, public/private companies and not-for-profits in assisting them with government relations.

Hahn serves as executive director and counsel to the Association of Indiana Life Insurance Companies, a trade association representing numerous life insurance companies. He frequently attends and monitors activities at the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, American Council of Life Insurers and the National Conference of Insurance Legislators. Hahn also serves as legislative and legal counsel to the Indiana Funeral Directors Association, a trade association with over 480 member companies.

In addition to his legislative practice, Hahn is a partner in Bose McKinney & Evans LLP where he serves as co-chair of the firm's Insurance Group and is a member of the Business Services Group. He represents clients in matters relating to insurance regulatory and transactions, corporate transactions, and gaming and hospitality.
